
Dr. A. Gobat,

Dear Sir,

I congratulate you and the Int. Peace Bureau most heartily on being the recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize for 1910.

I was worrying a little because I had not the money ready that I wished to send you, when I saw in the paper that the Nobel Peace Prize had been voted to the Bureau.

It has been given where it will do much good and will enable the Bureau to enlarge its usefulness. It has already done much, and the blessings of its work are world wide. It has been what I said it would be when I urged its establishment in 1890. A beacon light for all the world.

Yours very truly,

Belva A. Lockwood.
There is to be a great Peace Conference here this week. I will report it to you later.
